Thanks for Your Contributions

P. G. Malone, S.J.

On behalf of all of us at Loyola College to whom the pursuit of excellence in education is an unceasing task, I extend sincere thanks for your contributions to the Alumni Fund for Loyola. It is gratifying and encouraging to know that so many of you who have attended the College can appreciate the endless need to improve and augment our facilities.

The College alone cannot achieve our educational objectives; it needs the help that alumni have shown themselves willing to give. The mounting cost of qualified teaching staff and educational equipment; the surging tide of student enrolment; the clear challenge we are given to meet the demand for more and more and better and better graduates — these are the ingredients of educational obligation to which Loyola has committed herself.

Particularly at this time when we appear to be on the threshold of greater opportunities for self-determination under the charter of a university to the English-speaking Catholics of the province, we must look to all the resources we can muster. It is good to know you are there and ready.

University Status Sought for Loyola

Private Bill No. 133 petitioning for the granting of a university charter for the English-speaking Catholics of the province will be introduced at the present session of the Legislative Assembly.

The application for a charter under the name of Loyola University is being made by 12 petitioners broadly representative of the Anglo-Catholic community identified in the Parent Royal Commission Report on Education.

A meeting of the petitioners was held earlier this year with representatives of Marianopolis College, St. Joseph Teachers' College, Thomas More Institute and Rev. Leonard Crowley, Cardinal's Co-ordinator of Catholic activities, Paul Gallagher of the Superior Council on Education and the Hon. Eric Kierans.

Following the meeting a statement was issued expressing "sympathy and interest" and a spirit of co-operation among all the institutions recommended by the Royal Commission Report for participation in the new university.

Mr. Justice Paul Casey, chairman of the meeting, reported that the petitioners had invited representatives from all institutions to meet with them in future discussions in the hope that in this framework agreement will be reached whereby the four institutions can co-operate in the establishment of the new university."

He also reported that: "Com-

Alumni Beat Own Record

Office calls, home calls, phone calls, class gatherings, class managers meetings, letters and bulletins all formed part of this year's Alumni Fund for Loyola under chairman Bernie McCallum.

As THE ALUMNUS goes to press, contributions have passed $15,000 — the largest alumni annual giving amount in the history of the Association.

And the money is still coming in from the latest and final push of the campaign — the telethon. Pledges from close to 300 additional alumni were received during the three-day blitz. A battery of telephones was manned by willing alumni and students under the command of Bernie and field secretary Jack McManaman. Hope is high that these pledges will push results past the $20,000 mark from 25 per cent of Loyola alumni.

The final word is Bernie's: "If you haven't given yet . . . please do. Loyola needs the support of all of us."

mittees at the academic level would meet on an equal basis to explore and recommend principles and structures of the new institution."

The petitioners also "expressed their commitment to broaden the base of community representation and participation in the future of governors."

Meetings of academic personnel and student organizations of Marianopolis, Loyola and St. Joseph Teachers' College are being held continuously.

Father Mike Returns

Church Needs 'New Breed'

Rev. Michael McManus, B.A. '52, returned to Loyola on Sunday, April 11, as guest speaker at the annual Alumni Communion Breakfast. He said it brought him a nostalgia similar to that which one could feel upon meeting an old love from whom one had parted on the best of terms and for whom one still felt affection.

That warm and sincere affection between Father Mike and his fellow alumni is mutual, was very evident that morning as they visited prior to and following the breakfast. He has been away a long time . . . too long.

Following his ordination Father Mike was assigned to St. Aloysius Parish, then St. Augustine's, and finally to the Bishop's Palace before being sent to Rome, where he spent two years studying Canon Law. In 1962 he returned to Montreal and St. Anthony's was his next assignment as assistant to Father Myles Kelly '35.

Before he had time to do much more than air his baggage, he was sent to Ottawa where he has been serving as Secretary to the Apostolic Delegate since February, 1963.

The title of Father McManus' talk was "The New Breed", a title which aroused curiosity as to whether he meant the young people, the alumni of the future. As it developed, they are part of "The New Breed", but so is every Catholic.

Father McManus talked about the many changes taking place within the Catholic Church and Catholic way of life; of the courage which will be required to adjust to these changes and to guide them to a sensible, acceptable maturity.

He likened those who will have the courage and strength to help develop this transition to a young-thinking, alive people, not necessarily young in years but people unafraid to try something new. Those who oppose it because it is foreign to their inherited traditions, are a truly 'old' people, a dull people, afraid of life, afraid of themselves, afraid of change, afraid of the world, he said.

He believes that those who have the late Pope John XXIII's love of life, love of the Mass, and appreciation of what must be done in this rejuvenation of Catholic life as "The New Breed" . . . the ones from whom Catholicism will gain its strength.

This year, for the first time, alumni were invited to bring their wives, their older children and their friends. Among the guests at the head table were Father Maurice Stanford, recently returned from Darjeeling, India, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McManus, Father Mike's parents.

Mass was celebrated by Father Malone, President of the College, for the more than 100 people present on a beautiful sunny morning. Permission to use Hingston Hall gave alumni an opportunity to see how handsomely the new residence has been appointed and decorated.

Chairman Don Newton, Class of 1940, was pleased with the turnout and the launching of his class's 25th Anniversary Celebrations. We hope each of their other functions throughout the year will be as happy and successful.

Alumni-Senior Meeting Proves Valuable to Grads

by BOB LECLERC, B.A., '65

Harry J. Hemens

The "Alumni Meet The Seniors Night," a tradition initiated three years ago by the Association, was held again this year on the evening of February 15, in the Loyola College Foyer. Some 50 alumni and 90 to 100 members of the Class of '65 attended the event, which was highlighted by the addresses of President Harry Hemens and Mr. J. Stirling Dorrance, Loyola College Director of Development.

Following the talks, alumni and senior students met informally and discussed such matters as the role and function of the Alumni Association and, a topic which has captivated the interest of all Loyola enthusiasts, the College's immediate plans for expansion within the context of the fast-approaching University status.

From the point of view of the Class of '65 the evening was most significant. Socially, the old adage "a good time was had by all" could not be disproved—but the evening was of greater value to us as a tête-à-tête introduction to the Alumni Association, its purposes and goals, and to men who are in an excellent position to offer us information and advice in the career, professional or other, which we have chosen to enter.

The benefits which an individual can realize from such discussion cannot be stressed enough; at this crucial stage of our lives, the words which we hear from people who are qualified to speak, are of paramount importance and significance to us who are on the threshold of activity in the community beyond the walls of Loyola.

It is also noteworthy to point out the value which "Meet The Seniors" night has for the alumni members and for the Association in general. Arguing negatively, the absence of such an event would establish an immediate rift between the members and those who are on the brink of graduation. This would leave the Association in the indelicate position of having to make their first contact with the Class of '65 through a letter, perhaps one of request for a contribution to the "good of Loyola!" By means of an Alumni-Senior evening, the Association becomes something more than a name; letters which we may receive thereafter will in a way be humanized—certainly they will not be impersonal and cold.

The success of this year's evening was formidable and timely. It was successful because the alumni who attended showed a keen interest in the particular problems of the graduating student, and because they transmitted to us a feeling of enthusiasm both for the Association and for Loyola College.

I say that the success was timely because we are at a new plateau in the history of Loyola, where all component parts of the institution must seek closer mutual ties. The University Charter will demand co-operation among students, faculty, alumni and administration. The "Meet The Seniors" night was an overt symbol of the Association's desire to achieve this end.

In a very short time, we will be meeting as alumni, perhaps within the new University Center, which will be constructed by the fall of 1966. I am happy to say that this meeting will not be an encounter, but a reunion!

The Meaning of Easter...

Suffering Leads to Understanding

by FR. JOHN O'NEILL

Possibly the meaning of Easter can be completely understood only by those who know suffering. Recently while visiting a friend in the hospital I saw a young mother, babbling incoherently, being pushed along the corridor in a wheelchair. My friend told me that as a result of pregnancy a blood clot formed causing brain damage and partial paralysis. In her lucid moments this young woman knows the meaning of Easter; her young husband walking by her side knows it.

So, too, the mother and father down the corridor of that hospital who were waiting even after nine weeks for their son to regain consciousness after an automobile accident; so, too, the childless wife who watched her husband's life ebb away.

"Fear not — have confidence I have overcome the world." These are the words of the Risen Christ and only those who have shared His passion with Him, and who are sharing it still, perceive the full meaning of Easter.

God, who became a man in the person of Christ, experienced suffering and death as all men must experience them. But they did not overwhelm Him; rather, he moved through them and beyond them to a more glorious life.

Because Christ did this we, too, who are other Christs in virtue of our baptism, have assurance that we will never be consumed by suffering and death but pass beyond them to a more glorious life: "In our baptism we have been buried with him, died like him, so that, just as Christ was raised by God's power from the dead, we too might live and move in a new kind of existence."

A most frustrating human experience is the inability to lift the burden of anxiety and suffering from another, especially if that other is one we love. Yet where we are helpless, God is not; where our love is incomplete, God's love is complete.

Christ's Victory Source of Our Courage

"How rich is God in mercy, with what excess of love He loved us. Our sins had made dead men of us, and He, in giving life to Christ, gave life to us too; it is His grace that has saved us; raised us up too, enthroned us above the heavens in Christ Jesus."

The early Christian martyrs could not have been sustained in their suffering by the thought that they were giving example to others. Theirs was a deeper conviction; a conviction that while they were united to Christ they would persevere in their suffering and be enriched by their death.

St. Paul, too, perceived this. In his letter to the Romans, he listed some of his experiences—affliction, distress, persecution, hunger, nakedness, peril, the sword—and he insists that none of these will separate him or anyone else from the love of Christ — ". . . no created thing, will be able to separate us from the love of God which comes to us in Christ Jesus Our Lord."

Gradually we must become aware of the superiority of the man who has risen again with Christ to life. Not in the sense that we should be presumptuous and overbearing, nor in the sense that we pretend all suffering and sorrow have disappeared, but in the sense that everything, despite appearances, is somehow and mysteriously enveloped in Christ's victory. This is the source of our courage. Christ has really lifted us out beyond time and its powers, out beyond the despair of sin and the burden of flesh and death.

No amount of suffering and anxiety can separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus, in the Risen and Glorified Christ. It is this truth which gives a profound confidence that constantly overcomes hopelessness. It means that everything that happens in this world, every suffering that man experiences — everything is filled with the victory of Christ, Risen and Glorified.

The Sound of Music

Loyola Associates Sponsor Premiere

by DOROTHY McGEE

The Sound Of Music is a fascinating, happy and successful movie. But no less happy and successful are a group of energetic women, wives of alumni, who share their husbands' interest in and devotion to Loyola and its progress and who have organized themselves into a working group for Loyola — The Loyola Associates.

The original few ladies, wanting to do something constructive, met with Father Malone and learned of the great need for books to stock the new Vanier Library. They decided to undertake the raising of the necessary funds once they had established their objective. As word gradually spread among their friends, their numbers multiplied with each meeting they held. Mde. Vanier who, like these other women, shares her husband's interest in Loyola, agreed to be their patroness . . . a real moral boost to be sure!

Eventually, these ladies hit upon the idea of promoting the premiere of a movie. It had been done before, but not on behalf of Loyola. It was a first for Loyola — but so were they — The Loyola Associates.

Investigation brought to light that the beautiful Trapp family story, The Sound Of Music, would be coming to Montreal in March. After some negotiation an agreement was reached with the Seville Theatre for Loyola Associates to sponsor the opening night premiere of the film.

The maximum amount of money they could hope to obtain from this project was $2,100. Everyone knows how expenses of printing, mailing, management eat into profits but these ladies made up their minds not to have this happen to this money. Fortunately they all have good friends in various fields of business who are well disposed towards Loyola, (especially their husbands) and so printing was done "compliments of someone", postage was underwritten "compliments of someone else", and the onerous task of stuffing envelopes was undertaken by the ladies themselves.

Everyone did their part, but a great deal of credit for extra effort must be given to Mrs. J. L. D. Cleary (Jim '35) who managed the distribution of tickets (with a charming little note attached giving her a fantastic amount of extra work, but such a friendly gesture!); to Mrs. F. Wickham (Frank '50) who served as treasurer, while still mothering five little ones at home; to Mrs. R. J. Brodrick (Dr. Bob '43) who handled publicity — the life blood of any successful venture; to Mrs. T. P. Slattery (Tim '31), Vice-President of Loyola Associates, who had no specific task but so ably assisted everyone of the Committee where and when needed; and to their President, Mrs. C. H. Wayland. Unfortunately Mrs. Wayland's husband, Charles, missed being a student at Loyola in his youth, but their son, David, is to be an alumnus in '65. And as for Charles, well, we adopted him a long time ago and we are so very glad he adopted us too. Even if he had attended here, he couldn't mean more to his friends around Loyola.

A beautiful pre-opening reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. Wayland at the Montreal Badminton and Squash Club for a large number of special guests. Among them were: The Rt. Hon. The Lord Killanin and Lady Killanin from Dublin and Spiddal, County Galway, Ireland; the Irish Ambassador to Canada, Mr. John A. and Mrs. Belton; the Chancellor of McGill University, Mr. Howard I. and Mrs. Ross; Rev. Sister St. Mary Assumpta, C.N.D., President of Marianopolis College, and the Dean of Studies, Rev. Sister St. Madeline; the Principal of St. Joseph Teachers College, Rev. John Hilton ('50) and his mother, Mrs. Hilton.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward McCracken of St. Joseph Teachers College; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frank

Fleury ('34), Officer Commanding Quebec Command and Chairman of the Loyola Board of Governors; other members of the Board of Governors; The Hon. Mr. Justice and Mrs. Paul C. Casey ('24); His Honor, Judge and Mrs. Emmett J. McManamy ('28); The President of Loyola Alumni Association, Mr. Harry J. and Mrs. Hemens ('32); and many others.

Also present at the reception were the Hon. Mr. Eric Kierans ('35), Minister of Revenue, and Mrs. Kierans, but unfortunately they missed the show due to Mrs. Kierans breaking a bone in her leg in an accident just prior to entering the special bus to the theatre.

Dr. and Mrs. Bob Brodrick ('43), Mr. and Mrs. Don McNaughton ('49), Mr. and Mrs. John O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McCaffrey ('41) and Mr. and Mrs.

Redmond Kane were among those who entertained friends at their homes prior to everyone leaving for the theatre in a gala mood.

Due to the ceaseless enthusiasm of each member of the organization, tickets were sold out two weeks before the event.

Prior to the showing of the film, Mr. Slattery read three telegrams received that evening congratulating the Loyola Associates and wishing them well. They were from Madame Vanier, Baroness Von Trapp and the star of the film, Julie Andrews.

A very happy person who was also present at the reception and the premiere was the President of Loyola College, Very Rev. Patrick G. Malone, S.J., especially when the Loyola Associates' President, Mrs. Wayland, presented him with the cheque for $2,100.

Loyola's Lubomyr Mykytiuk of fourth year Arts receives his award for best supporting actor from Gilles Gasse, vice-president of the Canadian University Drama League, at the end of the festival of one-act plays staged this year for the first time at the College.

Loyola Hosts University Plays

by JAMES HASSINGER

Since its inception in 1948, the Canadian University Drama League has steadily provided university students with the opportunity to parade their theatrical talents before the often unsympathetic but always experienced eyes of fellow drama enthusiasts in colleges from the Maritimes to the Western provinces. The annual festival of one-act plays, therefore, has always been a week of excitement and challenge for its participants, and great entertainment for all concerned.

The 1965 Festival, held at Loyola College for the first time in a decade, was no exception. The 14 plays seen varied greatly in quality of presentation, from near-professionalism to a few examples of abject amateurism. Overall, however, the general standard of the plays was so high that experienced observers were quite willing to call this year's festival the best in years.

Much credit must go to Drama Society President Gerry Waters, who co-convened the event with Joanne Radford from Sir George Williams. Taking advantage of the newly-renovated facilities at Loyola, they assembled a well-run, well-attended, and very attractive set of plays.

The festival opened auspiciously with the University of Montreal's production of Les Nuits de Chicago; Loyola's entry of Escorial, a play by the Flemish playwright Michel de Ghelderode; and an excellent original play, William Cameron's Ascension, from the University of Toronto.

Montreal papers the next morning were full of praise for the calibre of these productions. In fact, two awards were won that night: Best Supporting Actor went to Loyola's Lubomyr Mykytiuk of fourth-year Arts; and a special award went to Heinar Piller, the only actor in the Toronto play.

If the first night had seen some fine drama, however, the second night was a disappointment. Marianopolis, McGill, and Guelph University presented plays that ranged from the stale to the embarrassingly bad. Even this experience, however, was valuable, as it showed many young actors and directors what not to do. Never again did production values fall this low. In fact, quality was raised continually, by such productions as Western's Deathwatch, which won both Best Direction and Best Production awards.

Jack Cunningham won the award for the Best Original Play with his Wisp in the Wind, which was produced by Sir George Williams University. As always, it seems, this award was the cause for many a hot debate. No one, however, could question this play's essential merit.

He believes treatment in such settings may only cause more harm and clinics, instead of prisons, should be the alternative for the majority of cases — though he recognizes the need for special custodial care for a few gravely-sick, dangerous cases. He claims the majority seem to profit best from out-patient clinics and more such care should be available.

REV. PAUL CONNOLLY spoke to the Ontario government's select committee on youth recently as he is against the lowering of the legal drinking age from the present 21 to 19 years of age. He states that too many Canadians don't know how to handle their liquor and drink to get drunk rather than for the enjoyment of the drink itself and its social aspect. Father Connolly pointed out that many teenagers have an alcohol problem (about 10% of those in his parish). "These young people take alcohol for several reasons — to be adventurous, to help them escape from a home problem or a problem with the law, because they need something to give them a lift, or merely because the alcohol is there," he said.
